NEVADA TROPHY FISH PROGRAM

The Trophy Fish Program began in 1968, recognizing the talents and luck of anglers catching notable-sized fish in Nevada. There are 28 different fish species for you to enter into the program and you can catch them from over 600 different streams, rivers, lakes, ponds, and reservoirs throughout the state. Generally, all you have to do is catch a fish at or greater than the minimum weight, measure and weigh it, take a picture, fill out the entry form, and mail it to us. It is important that if you believe it may be a state record, you must weigh it on a scale that is "weight certified" and have an NDOW employee witness it.

For 2013, fishing did not slow down, regardless of ongoing drought conditions, and anglers entered 184 trophy fish, more than double of what was entered during the previous year. Additionally, there were 40 water records (see Table below); the majority coming from streams that had no previous trophy fish entries. That is, Steve MacMillan made this his mission and established records for various trout species on 26 streams. Most trout did not even weigh over a pound. First time largemouth bass and bullhead catfish entries for Dayton Pond were caught and entered by Bruce Castro, as well as rainbow trout for Bodie Creek by Darren Hamrey. Jason Cleary and Kevin Holtz also caught record-sized bullhead catfish and largemouth bass from Dayton Pond and Orchard Pond, respectively, which had no previous entries. Finally, and something to be additionally proud of, Dante Ray received the only state record certificate this year, a spotted bass caught from Sparks Marina Pond.

Aside from breaking state and water records, a number of anglers received multiple trophy fish certificates throughout the year. For example, Steve MacMillan received 30, Kent Burroughs 20, John Ako 18, Mike McNeilly 17, Alvin Mullins 10, and Louis Varela also received 10 certificates. Of particular interest, Alvin Mullins caught all of his trophy fish (channel catfish and carp) from Virginia Lake, a small 24 acre urban pond located in Reno. Channel catfish all weighed 10 pounds and over and his largest was an even 16 pounds.

Two anglers completed the Native Fish Slam in 2013, bringing the total to six for the first two years of the program. Many anglers, however, have a good start by entering from one to three fish since the program started. Of course, there is no time limit on when you need to complete the slam, so take your time, and enjoy getting out and fishing. Regardless of the size of fish entered into the Trophy Fish or Native Fish Slam Programs, it is good to see anglers out enjoying the sport in many new and remote waters in Nevada.
